

HAMMANSKRAAL

COMMUNITY OVERVIEW

HAMMANSKRAAL is a peri-urban area grappling with significant development challenges, including entrenched poverty, inadequate services, inequality, and food insecurity, amidst its rapidly growing population. We were invited by the community to partner with local farmers to roll out our agricultural economic empowerment programme. There is a pressing need for sustainable agricultural businesses. Our shared vision is to restore the agriculture culture that once thrived. By reviving this sector, we aim to address social issues like poverty, inequality, and food insecurity. Agriculture has the power to transform lives, create jobs, and stimulate local economies.

Beulah Africa's Sustainable Community Development Programme

Our Sustainable Community Development Programme, is grounded in the belief that development is a long-term journey of positive, transformative change that should be locally owned and driven. We select specific areas where we can remain present over an extended period, running multiple interconnected programmes at each location to ensure lasting impact. Before implementing any initiative, we conduct a thorough Socio-Economic Community Needs Assessment using both primary and secondary data. This allows us to understand the unique dynamics of the community and ensure that the programmes we design are relevant and fit for purpose.

Our approach goes beyond simply delivering services – we motivate communities to take ownership of their development, empowering them to create and pursue a shared vision for their future. We work closely with them to develop actionable plans and provide ongoing support to help them start executing their strategies to achieve this vision. Understanding that development is a multi-faceted process, we assemble a diverse, multi-disciplinary team and foster collaboration between public, private, and civil sector stakeholders to drive sustainable change.

We commit long-term to the communities we serve, employing skilled local site staff who are expert community development practitioners dedicated to facilitating positive transformation within their own context. We support these communities by rolling out our own programmes, such as our Economic Empowerment Programme, to further strengthen their capacity and promote self-sufficiency. By taking this integrated, sustained approach, we help build resilient communities that can thrive independently in the future.

Past Projects

- Sukuma Food Security and Agricultural Development

Since 2008, Sukuma Community Transformation has been working in Hamanskraal, empowering individuals and communities through agricultural training and business development. The programme focuses on food security, agricultural business development and fostering community stability and growth.

Many small-scale farmers face barriers to success, including limited access to markets, training, and agricultural inputs. To overcome these challenges, Sukuma has invested in infrastructure development, drilling over 20 boreholes to provide a secure water source for local farmers, impacting over 100 households and enhancing food security and agricultural productivity.

Testimonial

“Having training on food security has empowered me with understanding of how one can produce healthy products. I've realised now that I used to prepare the soil the wrong way. This has opened my eyes and understanding that I must take care of the soil and not damage it. Now I have changed from old methods of soil preparation to a more advanced and better one in order to produce healthy and nourished products.”
